Introduction

1. Codes of practice are issued by the Pensions Regulator, the body that regulates work-based pension arrangements (occupational pension schemes and certain aspects of stakeholder and other personal pensions). The Pensions Regulator is required by the pensions legislation¹ to issue this code.
2. The Pensions Regulator's statutory objectives are to protect the benefits of pension scheme members, to reduce the risk of calls on the Pension Protection Fund, and to promote the good administration of work-based pension schemes.
3. The Pensions Regulator has a number of regulatory tools, including issuing codes of practice, to enable it to meet its objectives. The Pensions Regulator will target its resources on those areas where members' benefits are at greatest risk.
4. Codes of practice provide practical guidelines on the requirements of pensions legislation and set out the standards of conduct and practice expected of those who must meet these requirements.² The intention is that the standards set out in the code are consistent with how a well-run pension scheme would choose to meet its legal obligations.
5. Throughout this code, references to a scheme's trustees should be read as references to a scheme's trustees or managers, as appropriate.

Who does this code of practice apply to?

6. This code of practice applies to trustees of occupational pension schemes where the scheme rules do not provide vested rights to benefits for members with three months' service, but less than two years' service. It will also be of use to sponsoring employers of such schemes, pensions administrators, professional advisers and pensions practitioners in general.

The status of codes of practice

7. Codes of practice are not statements of the law and there is no penalty for failing to comply with them.³ It is not necessary for all the provisions of a code of practice to be followed in every circumstance. Any alternative approach to that appearing in the code of practice will nevertheless need to meet the underlying legal requirements, and a penalty may be imposed

² See section 90(1) of Pensions Act 2004.

³ See section 90(4) of Pensions Act 2004.

if these requirements are not met. When determining whether the legal requirements have been met, a court or tribunal must take any relevant provisions of a code of practice into account.⁴

Interaction with other codes of practice

8. Other codes include those on Notifiable events, Reporting breaches of the law, Trustee knowledge and understanding, Internal controls, Reasonable periods in disclosure to members of occupational pension schemes. There will also be some interaction with regulations, such as those relating to winding up.⁵

⁴ See section 90(5) of Pensions Act 2004.

⁵ Occupational Pension Schemes (Winding Up etc) Regulations 2005 (SI 2005/706)

The code at a glance

The code sets out the following:

- The rights given to those leaving occupational pension schemes after three months and with less than two years' pensionable service and without vested rights to benefit under the scheme rules.
- The duties placed upon trustees by the legislation.
- The Regulator's view as to what constitutes the reasonable time periods set out in the legislation for:
 - (i) notifying a member of their rights and telling them how they can exercise those rights;
 - (ii) a member's response to trustees;
 - (iii) trustees to give effect to a member's chosen option; and
 - (iv) the default process where a member fails to respond to their notification.

Note If a scheme is contracted out of the State Second Pension and a refund of contributions is to be paid, trustees will need to take account of the time constraints for the payments of a contributions equivalent premium (see paragraphs 10 ,14 and 31 of the code) when considering the reasonable time periods set out in the code.

In this code of practice, references to the law that applies in Great Britain should be taken to include corresponding legislation in Northern Ireland; an annex lists the corresponding references.

The requirement to notify early leavers of their rights

9. When a member of an occupational pension scheme leaves pensionable service after three months and with less than two years' pensionable service and without vested rights to benefit under the scheme rules, they must be notified of their statutory rights to take a cash transfer sum or a contribution refund⁶.
10. Those rights are to take either a cash transfer sum, calculated in the same way as a cash equivalent transfer value, or a refund of their own contributions, if any (less tax and any contributions equivalent premium⁷ paid as appropriate). These may be reduced or increased where permitted/required by legislation, eg if the scheme is underfunded.
11. The three-month condition is satisfied if pensionable service under that scheme, taken together with:
 - any previous period of pensionable service under the scheme; and
 - any period of employment in linked qualifying service⁸ under another schemeamounts to at least three months⁹.
12. Within a reasonable period of a member leaving service as above, trustees of the scheme must provide them with a written notice¹⁰ giving adequate information to explain:
 - the nature of the right acquired to a cash transfer sum or a contribution refund under the legislation¹¹;
 - the amount of both the cash transfer sum and contribution refund;
 - how and by when they may exercise the right; and
 - such other information as may be prescribed.

⁶ Chapter 5 of Part IV of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 (PSA 93), inserted by Section 264 of the Pensions Act 2004.

⁸ 'Linked qualifying service' means actual service in a previous scheme which gives rise to a transfer credit, which ranks as qualifying service (section 179 of PSA 93). Only service which has been transferred into another scheme, and which gives rise to benefits under that scheme, can be linked qualifying service.

⁹ Section 101AA(2) of PSA 93

¹⁰ Section 101AC(2) of PSA 93

¹¹ Section 101AB of PSA 93

13. The Regulator expects that notices will be provided to a member as soon as reasonably possible and that this should normally be within three months of the member leaving pensionable service.
14. The Regulator would have no concerns if a member were notified of their rights well within this period.

If schemes are contracted out of the State Second Pension (S2P)¹² and there is the possibility of the payment of contributions equivalent premiums to the state, trustees may need to ensure that any affected member is notified within a shorter period in order to ensure that the payment can be made in time (see paragraph 31 on contracting-out).

15. If the trustees are aware that it will take longer than three months to notify any member they should, as a matter of good practice, keep them informed of the situation, and notify them of their rights in full as soon as possible

Leaving schemes in wind-up

16. Where an active member has at least three months' pensionable service and with less than two years' pensionable service and no vested rights when a scheme commences wind-up, they will be entitled only to a refund of their own contributions (if any). They will not have the option to take a cash transfer sum.¹³
17. The refund must then be made within a reasonable time, as it would in an ongoing scheme.
18. Where a member leaves a scheme in the circumstances set out in paragraph 16 above but wind-up is commenced after they have left, they still have the option to take a cash transfer sum, but this may be reduced or increased in accordance with legislation (even after the member has replied to the trustees) before the transfer is made by the trustees.

¹² State Second Pension (or S2P) is an amount of pension provided by the State that is additional to the basic state pension. If members of a scheme are contracted-out of S2P then they pay lower NI contributions (and so does the employer) They may still be entitled to some rights to S2P, depending on the level of earnings.

¹³ Regulation 5 of the Occupational Pension Schemes (Winding Up etc.) Regulations 2005 (SI 2005/706).

The reply date

19. When a member is provided with a statement of their rights¹⁴ they must be given a reasonable period within which to reply to the trustees or managers in order to exercise those rights¹⁵. The last date upon which the member may reply must be set out in the statement¹⁶.
20. The member may exercise their rights by notifying their chosen option to the trustees or managers in writing; this can include electronic transmission (fax, email) if both parties are agreeable.
21. The Regulator expects that the member would normally be given three months from the date that the statement is given to them to the reply date. The member can always respond sooner than the end of the period, but should not be pressured into making a decision without time to take proper financial advice.
22. If the member requests further time to reply, the trustees or managers can extend the reply period, but they are not obliged to do so¹⁷.
23. When the reply date (and any further period noted in paragraph 22 above) has passed, the member may be provided with a contributions refund under the default procedure¹⁸.

Giving effect to the member's rights

24. On receiving the member's written reply the trustees must, within a reasonable period, do what is needed to carry out the member's election.
25. If the member is exercising their right to a cash transfer, they must specify how it is to be used. Cash transfers can be used to acquire benefits or rights under another occupational or personal pension scheme, or to purchase an annuity, or in any other way that the legislation may prescribe¹⁹.
26. If the member chooses to take a contributions refund, they may require the trustees to pay it directly to them, or at their direction to someone else²⁰.

¹⁴ See paragraph 9

¹⁵ Section 101AC(2)(b) of PSA 93

¹⁶ Section 101AC(3)(c) of PSA 93

¹⁷ Section 101A1 (2) of PSA 93

¹⁸ See paragraph 29

¹⁹ Section 101AE of PSA 93

²⁰ Section 101AG(4) of PSA 93

27. The Regulator expects that trustees or managers will give effect to a member's rights without unjustifiable delay after the member has elected how they wish to receive them, and in any event this should normally be within three months of the member making the election.

28. In exceptional circumstances a longer period may be justifiable.

Default procedure

29. Where a member does not reply to the trustees or managers to exercise the right to a cash transfer sum or contribution refund²¹ within the reply period (or within that period as extended by the trustees or managers), the trustees or managers may, within a reasonable period from the reply date or from the end of any further period allowed by them, pay the contribution refund to the member²².

30. The Regulator would expect the trustees or managers to allow a period of one month after the reply date before paying a member a contribution refund (as an exercise of the default option).

Contracting-out

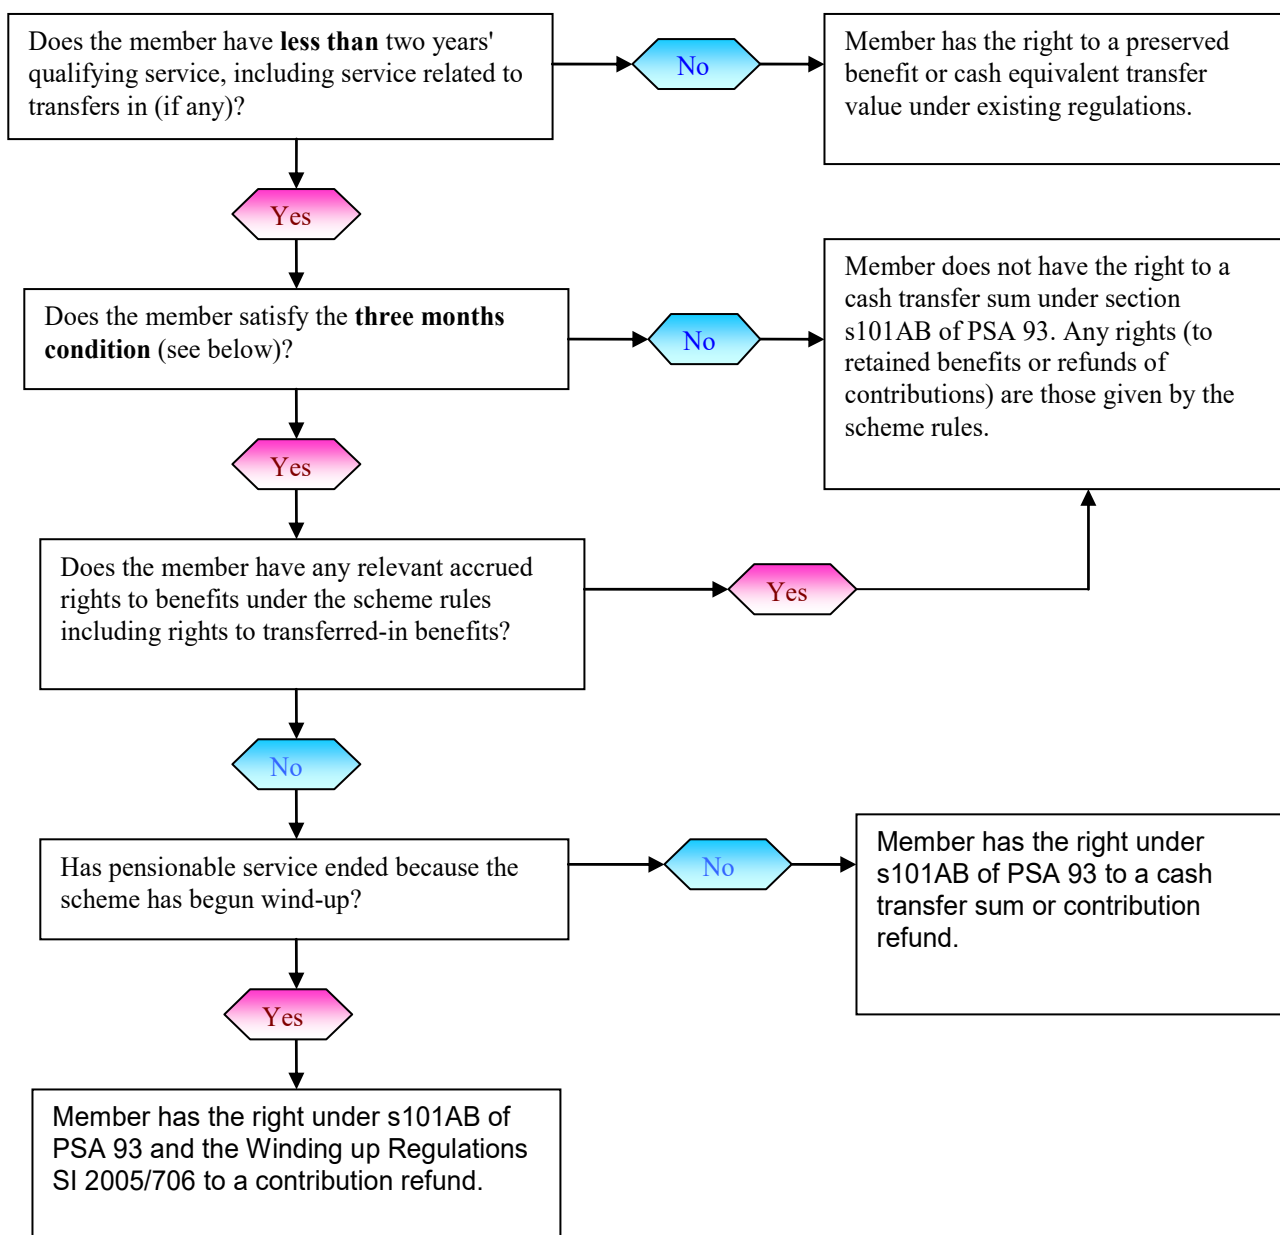

31. If a scheme is contracted out of the S2P and there is the possibility of the payment of contributions equivalent premiums to re-instate the member's rights in the S2P, action will need to be taken within six months from the date they leave service. Accordingly, the total of the period allowed to notify a member of their rights, the reply period, and the default period, should come to less than six months to correspond to this period. In order not to prejudice the member's position, in these circumstances the Regulator would expect to see them notified of their rights as quickly as possible.

Flowchart 1

Early leaver – new rights

Three months condition

On the date on which pensionable service terminates, the period of the member's pensionable service under the scheme, taken together with:

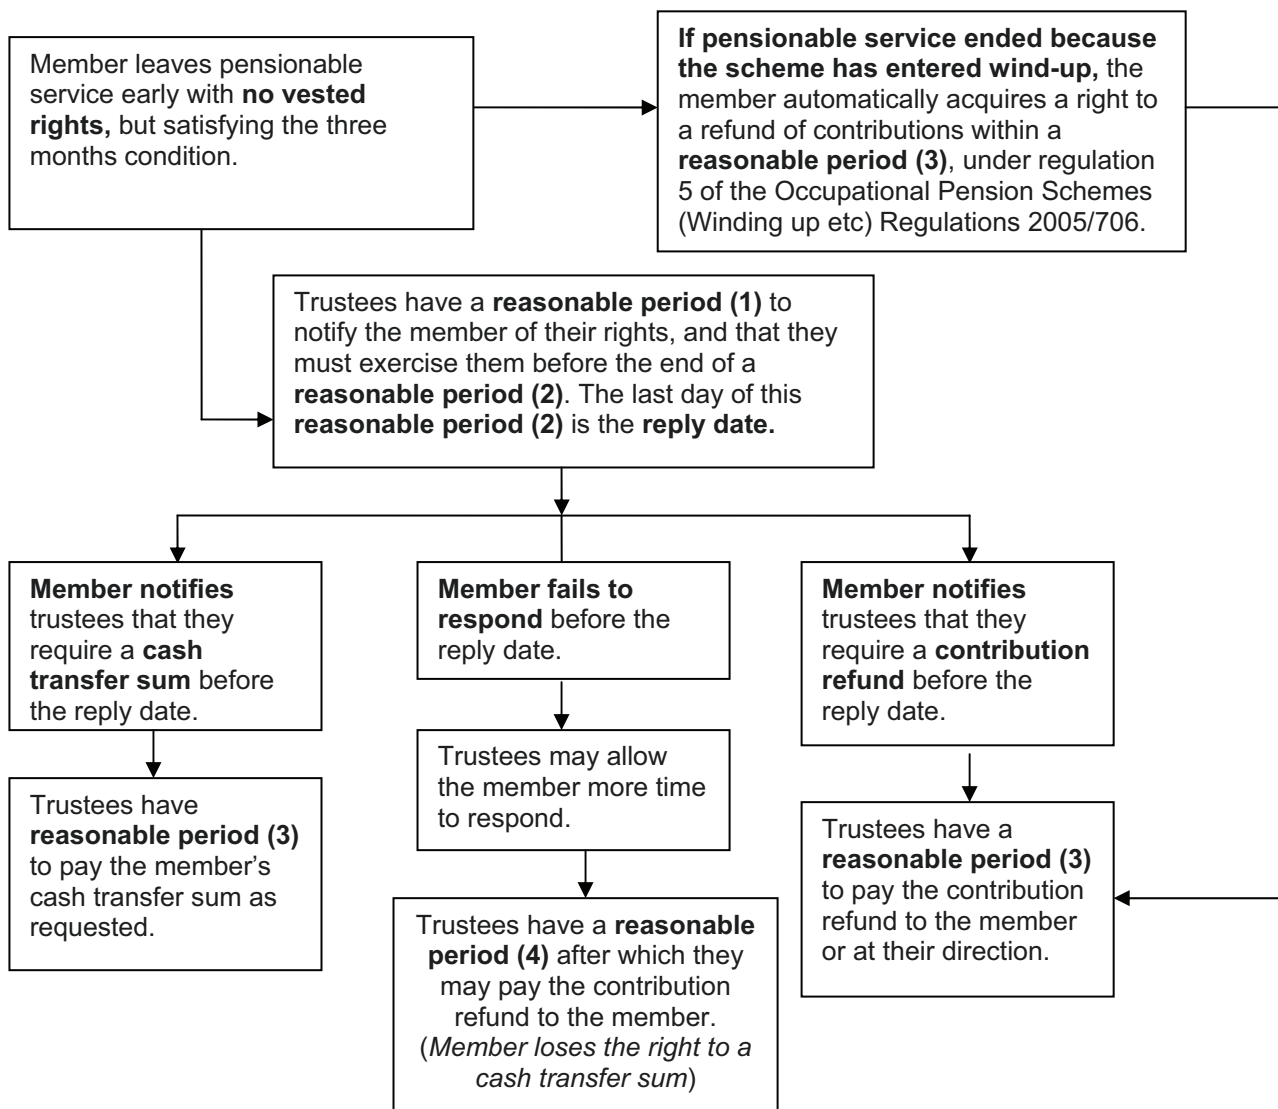

- a) any previous period of their pensionable service under the scheme; and
- b) any period throughout which they were employed in * linked qualifying service under another scheme, amounts to at least three months.

* 'Linked qualifying service' means actual service in a previous scheme which gives rise to a transfer credit, which ranks as qualifying service (s179 PSA 93). Only service which has been transferred in to another scheme, and which gives rise to benefits under that scheme, can be linked qualifying service.

Flowchart 2 – The process

This chart shows the process involved when a member leaves pensionable service early with less than two years' pensionable service and no vested rights to a benefit under the scheme, but satisfies the three months condition (see Flowchart 1).

Note: If the scheme is contracted out of the State Second Pension and the trustees wish to pay a contributions equivalent premium, (see paragraph 2 of the code) the overall time taken to do this will need to be less than six months to allow for such a payment.

- Reasonable period (1) The Regulator expects that this would usually be within a period of three months from the date of the member leaving pensionable service.
- Reasonable period (2) The Regulator expects that this would usually be a period of at least three months from the date that member is notified of their rights.
- Reasonable period (3) The Regulator expects that this would usually be within a period of three months from the date of the member's notification or deemed notification (regulation 5 of the Occupational Pension Schemes (Winding up etc) Regulations 2005/706) to the trustees.
- Reasonable period (4) The Regulator expects that this would usually be a period of one month from the reply date or the end of any further period of time notified to the member by the trustees.
- Reply date Is the last day of the reasonable period (2).
